DEFENDANT CENTRAL TRANSPORT INTERNATIONAL, INC.'S
VOIR DIRE INFORMATION

1. Description of Case

In January, 2003, Accu-Spec Electronic Services, Inc. ("Accu-Spec"), engaged Logistics Plus, Inc. ("Logistics Plus") a transportation logistics company, to arrange for delivery of a crate from Fremont, California to Accu-Spec's facility in McKean, Pennsylvania. Logistics Plus contacted Central Transport International Inc. ("CTI"), a trucking company and entered in to an agreement for the crate to be transported. The plaintiff, Accu-Spec, sued defendants, Central Transport and Logistics Plus, Inc. damages it alleges resulted from the transport of Accu-Spec's cargo from Fremont, California to McKean, Pennsylvania. Specifically, the damages claimed by Accu-Spec pertain to an X-ray machine.

Logistics Plus contends that it is not responsible for any damage as it did not actually transport the freight.

Central Transport contends that it is not responsible for the damages claimed by Accu-Spec, or that its liability is limited, because the freight was misclassified by Accu-Spec's agent, Logistics Plus, resulting in a lower freight rate, was used machinery subject to a limitation of liability, and was not packaged properly.
